Indians Turn Out Anti-Reds

Release 21,809 PWs To UN Command In Historic Move Slapped by Reds

PANMUNJOM, Thursday (AP) — India completed early today the historic turnover of 21,809 anti-Red prisoners to the U. N. Command as North Korean broadcasts declared the action "destroys" the armistice.

The last prisoner, a Chinese, was turned over at 12:55 a. m. (9:55 a. m. Wednesday est) at the end of a surprisingly smooth operation during which the North Korean and Chinese captives often sang and cheered in the rain and mud.

The Indian command announced that 14,227 Chinese and 7,582 North Koreans were turned out of the compounds at Panmunjom, ending more than three years of captivity for many of them.

The Indians said 72 Chinese and 32 North Koreans asked to go home or to a neutral country during the operation, which began Wednesday morning.

The Communists, who had protested the turnover plans bitterly, made no threatening gestures as the prisoners streamed southward.

The U. N. Command has promised all of the prisoners their freedom at midnight Friday.

Red China's Peiping radio Wednesday night repeated its warning that "any unilateral action with regard to the prisoners of war is absolutely impermissible." But the warning was mildly worded and officials said the Reds apparently had accepted the Indian command's decision to return unrepatriated prisoners as an accomplished fact.

The transfer went smoothly despite minor hitches and a cold, drizzling rain.

At least twice the southward flow of prisoners was interrupted. No Koreans appeared for an hour early in the evening, but there was no explanation. Earlier a dispute over a prisoner asking repatriation halted the movement of Chinese prisoners.

A handful of American, British and South Korean prisoners who chose to stay with the Communists remained in their neutral zone compound. The Indians planned to turn them back to the Communists, but the Reds refused to take them.

The Indians reported receipt of a letter from the Communist high command stating flatly that the Reds did "not propose to receive" custody of the prisoners Wednesday.

The note was in addition to a nine-page letter of protest sent to the Indian command Tuesday.

Meanwhile, in Taipei, Chinese Nationalists were jubilant after hearing the release had begun. Formosa's biggest celebration in years is planned for the day the POWs begin landing.

Nationalist sources said the prisoners will be held in special villages for an undetermined period for re-education and then will be given a choice of civilian life or joining Nationalist military forces.

U. S. Army Secretary Robert Stevens, here for the prisoner transfer, said any of the 21 Americans who asks for repatriation before midnight Friday would be welcome to return home.

Under Allied interpretation of the Korean armistice all unrepatriated war prisoners are to be freed as civilians at midnight Friday. The Communists wanted them kept in custody until a peace conference decides their future.

The first of 14,221 anti-Communist Chinese prisoners returned to the U. N. Wednesday were sped to Ascom City by truck. Then they boarded U. S. landings ships in nearby Inchon harbor and were scheduled to sail for Formosa early Thursday.

Gen. John E. Hull, U. N. Far East commander, said they would become civilians at midnight Friday whether or not they are on the high seas or still in Korea.

Trainloads of North Korean prisoners moved southward toward the ROK army post at Kusan where they will be held until midnight Friday.

As darkness fell, U. S. troops moved huge searchlights into position along the south border of the neutral zone to guide the returning prisoners.

48 Degree Drop

Sedalia has experienced a 48 degree drop in temperature in the first 14 hours of today—from 63 at 2 a. m. to 15 at 2 p. m. Get out the long handled drawers, folks, they're going to feel good tonight and tomorrow.

Cold wave tonight, with light snow and strong northerly winds, temperature falling to between zero and five below by tomorrow morning. Thursday, considerable cloudiness and quite cold, high between 5 and 10 above zero.

One year ago today here high 35, low 21, rainfall .10 inch. Two years ago high 45, low 27. Three years ago high 63, low 24.

The temperature at 7 a. m., was 52; 34 at 9 a. m.; 24 at 10 a. m.; 20 at 12 noon; 17 at 1 p. m., and 15 at 2 p. m. Precipitation, .41 inch.

Stage at Lake of the Ozarks: 44.2, rise 0.1.

Sedalia's Public Schools Get Federal Check for $8,571 Aid

A check for $8,571 was received Wednesday morning by the Sedalia public school system according to Heber Hunt, superintendent. "It is the first payment of $11,428.49 in current aid granted to the system by the federal government because so many pupils have parents connected with the Sedalia Air Force Base. The rest of the money will be received after the school year ends and the school system makes a final report of average daily attendance by those federally connected pupils.

Hunt also received a letter from Kenneth Kirchner, assistant commissioner of the state department of education, stating that Kirchner had been informed by the U. S. office of Education that building aid to any school with a priority index of less than 30 seems doubtful. Sedalia's public schools have a priority index of about 13.

Kirchner stated that to fill all requests would take $136,000,000, but that only $50,000,000 was appropriated by Congress. There have been 23 applications for federal building aid submitted in Missouri, including one by Sedalia for approximately $126,000. Only nine have a priority index above 30. That means, Kirchner, wrote, that two thirds of the Missouri requests will go unfilled.

He pointed out that the amount appropriated was far from adequate and that, in the past, such a situation has been met by an additional appropriation. He could not venture to predict whether that will be done this time, he said.

Warrensburg and Knob Noster have already been granted building aid, as a result of the influx of children of school age in those two communities. Knob Noster received $71,550 and Warrensburg got $98,580. Even these grants were only a part of what had been requested.

Mr. Hunt explained at the last meeting of the Board of Education that Warrensburg received approximately 56 per cent of its original request.

Sedalia has received its own share of an increase in enrollment. The enrollment for the fourth month of school during the current school year was 171 more than the same month last year, Hunt reported. Sedalia's request for current aid was based on a figure of 158 federally connected pupils.

George Asks GOP to Vote Amendment

Would Put Bricker Proposal to Test By the Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. George (D-Ga.) urged Republicans today to take to a Senate vote their differences over a proposed constitutional amendment on treaty powers. But Sen. Knowland of California, the GOP leader, said he hasn't given up hope of a compromise.

George, taking a leading role for the Democrats in the treaty controversy, said he regards as "a fair proposition" an offer by Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) to submit to a rollcall test a section of a proposed constitutional amendment criticized by President Eisenhower.

Eisenhower said he would never agree to giving the states power to nullify within their own borders the operations of treaties.

Bricker has said that what he is trying to do is to make sure that treaties don't take away the rights of the states to establish the qualifications of voters and to exercise other powers reserved to them in the Constitution. Lawyers disagree as to whether this is a real danger.

George said the quick and simple way to end the argument is to put it up to the Senate.

"I don't see why the Republican leaders should object to settling this issue in the Senate," the Georgia senator said in an interview. "A good many senators who favor adoption of a constitutional amendment don't want to vote for this clause because they believe it goes too far."

"I think I might vote to eliminate it, although I don't consider it as significant nor as harmful as some others seem to think it is."

George predicted that on a test, a majority of the Senate would vote to trip out the disputed clause and thus make the proposed treaty power amendment more palatable to Eisenhower. Democratic votes are likely to decide the question.

Revising the proposal on the Senate floor requires only a majority vote. Passage of a constitutional amendment, in both Senate and House, takes two-thirds majority of those present. Then three-fourths of the states must ratify it to make it effective.

Knowland said in a separate interview he isn't going to make up his mind about any Senate test until he sees whether further conferences produce some kind of agreement with Bricker.

Sen. Ferguson of Michigan, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee, expressed confidence an understanding can be reached.

Knowland and Ferguson have authored a proposed substitute which would provide that future treaties made "pursuant" to the Constitution should become the supreme law of the land.

Knowland said this would require treaties and presidential executive agreements to conform with the Constitution, but would not contain the controversial clause to which Eisenhower objected.

George said that as he reads it, the substitute would make it possible to challenge the constitutionality of treaties in courts and would make them clearly subject to repeal by Congress.

Knowland said he believes that the basic design of an agreement with Bricker has been found in the substitute, although Bricker said it is not satisfactory to him in its present form.

Bricker said he fears the substitute "wouldn't permit Congress or the states to have anything to say" about the operation of a treaty, once it was ratified.

Observing that he would hate to start all over again after lengthy hearings on his proposal, the Ohioan said he is "willing to go to any extent I can to establish the principle that the Constitution is supreme to treaties."

He said that under his amendment "no state could invalidate the operation of a treaty in international affairs," although Eisenhower had complained that if it were adopted he would have to represent 48 states and not a single united nation in negotiation with other countries.

Signs of New Unity by Dems Of the South

Harmony With Party Leaders May Aid at Polls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Holland (D-Fla.) said today there are signs of a new unity between Southern Democrats and national party leaders which should pay off in the November elections involving control of Congress.

Holland, who led a group of Southern senators in boycotting a midsummer party rally at Chicago last year, said he is joining fully in preparations for a party meeting scheduled at Miami Beach, Fla., March 6.

Sen. Smathers (D-Fla.) said in a statement former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois, the 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, is expected to be the main speaker. Party members from Southern states will attend.

Holland said in an interview he believes conditions have changed materially since he said he would not attend the 1953 Chicago rally because he didn't believe it would benefit the South.

"I think the attitude of the national party leadership is decidedly more considerate to the South now than it was at that time," Holland declared. "I feel the signs are encouraging for better cooperation within the party than they have been in months."

Stevenson lost four Southern states to Eisenhower in the 1952 elections. He had taken a stand in favor of civil rights legislation. In this connection, Holland said he was pleased by Stevenson's statements on a visit to Atlanta late last year.

"He said at Atlanta that the South had made more significant progress in the field of solving civil rights problems than had any other part of the nation," Holland said. That is different talk from what he heard in 1952.

"I think that with give and take a satisfactory program can be worked out this issue. We Southerners can't expect to have our views followed 100 per cent but we're getting tired of the other side's insistence on having their views adopted 100 per cent."

"We ought to be willing to meet halfway any sincere efforts at reconciliation, and I feel that those efforts are being made."

Holland noted, too, that the Chicago meeting had virtually buried the "loyalty oath" to which Southerners had objected strenuously. The oath pledged 1952 convention delegates to try to get convention nominees on their state ballots under the Democratic label.

The only place I've ever been homesick for is Missouri," he added.

All-in-all he had spent a very pleasant year at home, he said. With that a secretary came up with a sheaf of papers. Truman smiled a farewell and ducked into his own office, to be at his business of being a plain citizen.

They will spend Wednesday night in a Kansas City hotel and report the next day to the Kansas City induction station. They will then be sent to Ft. Riley, Kan., for processing and reassignment.

TRANSPORT SKIDS INTO MONTANA CREEK — A St. Louis, Mo., truck driver, Reamon Schroeder, 26, escaped injury in this crash when his transport skidded into a creek near Billings, Mont. The truck was loaded with four new automobiles. Schroeder said he lost control when his wheels locked. The big truck skidded off a snow-covered bridge and landed upside down in the icy waters of Fryer Creek. (AP Wirephoto.)

To Organize Civil Air Patrol Here

Meeting Thursday Night for Those Who Are Interested

The Civil Air Patrol Wing commander, Colonel Freer of Joplin, and the Air Force liaison officer will be at the City Hall council chamber Thursday night, Jan. 21, at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of organizing a Civil Air Patrol Squadron in Sedalia and the immediate vicinity.

Non-flying personnel are welcome as well as flying personnel, as the CAP takes both to operate efficiently. Those interested in radio will also find much interest in the CAP.

The CAP is a private group of civilians under the direction of the Air Force. They are called out in emergency for air search, plane wreckage, etc. They are particularly trained in the phases of air search and ground observing.

The Air Force furnishes materials, training aids and equipment. The CAP cadets will be instructed in navigation, radio communication, aircraft identification and similar subjects.

With the re-activation of the Sedalia Air Force Base, the need for a Civil Air Patrol is greater than ever. The CAP plays a very important role to the community and country and it is one in which any one may have a part in the operation and function.

This group is opened to both men and women, age 16 years and up, regardless of experience with airplanes. Colonel Freer will answer any questions that might be asked in regard to the operation of the CAP and the duties of those who may wish to become members.

Seeding must start before May 1 if it is to do any good, the Farm Bureau said.

"The Missouri Farm Bureau Federation does not now state, nor has it ever stated, that the government should set up any free seed plan. We do maintain that the average farmer will need to use at least four times as much seed as in a normal year . . ."

"Isn't it reasonable to assume we could move the 120 million pounds of (government owned) grass seed stocks through regular channels at the present current retail prices with whatever assistance the federal government can give in the way of reduced price?"

A group of farm leaders meeting in Columbia recently urged the U. S. Department of Agriculture to furnish 75 per cent of the cost of a reseedling program.

There he was met by one newsman.

The former President said with a smile that he still was making his "adjustment to civil life," that his memoirs were taking up most of his time, and as for being homesick for Washington, he didn't miss it a bit, but did miss his friends there.

The only place I've ever been homesick for is Missouri," he added.

All-in-all he had spent a very pleasant year at home, he said. With that a secretary came up with a sheaf of papers. Truman smiled a farewell and ducked into his own office, to be at his business of being a plain citizen.

Dulles Prepares to Thresh Out Atom Talk Plans With Molotov

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles was preparing today to thresh out with Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov how to talk over the U. S. proposal to pool atomic energy resources for peaceful purposes.

Dulles met a second time yesterday with Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin. Afterward, the State Department announced the next talks would be between Dulles and Molotov at Berlin.

It seemed clear that Dulles, who flies to Berlin tomorrow, was pressing for early agreement on when, how and where full-scale atom-for-peace talks can be held.

His two meetings with Zarubin, on Jan. 11 and yesterday, appeared to be the curtain raiser to more precise conversation with Molotov.

President Eisenhower suggested the talks in a United Nations address Dec. 8. He said they should be private and should be aimed at creating an agency which, under U. N. auspices, would handle atomic materials and knowledge for peaceful uses, such as in medicine and electric power generation.

Russia, the United States, Britain and other atomic powers would contribute to this pool.

The goal back of the plan is to seek, through this indirect approach, a solution to the deadlocked atomic armaments dispute. Russia, in agreeing to the discussions, suggested a better way would be for nations with atomic weapons to sign a compact outlawing their use.

Dulles repeated yesterday that this angle can be explored. He told his news conference it was not outside the scope of his expected procedural talks with Molotov at Berlin.

Dulles said yesterday he does not expect to get into the substance of Eisenhower's proposal. He said that would take a lot of technical experts and he was not taking any such staff to Berlin.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Aloys P. Kaufmann, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, has asked air force officials to consider St. Louis as a possible site for a proposed 175-million-dollar Air Force academy.

Kaufmann, former St. Louis mayor, suggested the city as the academy site, in a telegram to Air Force Secretary Harold E. Talbot yesterday. The House Armed Services Committee recently approved a move to establish an air academy.

Kaufmann said St. Louis would make a suitable site for the academy because of its "central geographic location, variable seasons and its many educational, cultural and environmental advantages."

Up to date no society for the prevention of cruelty to or the coddle-pussing of the downtrodden has protested about Chief of Police Neighbors re-instituting the old fashioned daily routine of requiring prisoners in the city jail to do constructive work that benefits the city and limbers the muscles of the jail's winter sojourners.

Maybe the city could make a deal with the county to have the prisoners build Pettis a new jail, replacing the one which has been condemned by grand juries for about 60 years; or even install that elevator in the court house, talked of the past 25 years and about which "nobody does nothing." This might require some smarties who could be obtained if the police were allowed to pick up a few of those clever individuals around town who persist in violating the moral codes.

Before city prisoners were put to work they were mostly starboarders, eating and sleeping at the city's expense. There was a time when Bothwell Hospital was plagued by non-paying patients who considered the place a winter and summer resort. If this situation should arise again perhaps the hospital board might devise some scheme to have these patients assigned to a bed-and-breakfast or perform other chores, relieving the active personnel who are hard-pressed for enough hours of the day and night taking care of legitimate paying patients.

Mercury Plummets Down Hill

From 63 In Wee Small Hours to 15 At 2 p. m., Cold Shivers Populace

Young Mr. Fifty Four took a noisy shower early today, then donned his winter outfit and went outside for a ride on his new Mercury bobble. Once he arrived at the sled course, he gave a big push, hopped on the sled and he's been riding down hill ever since, at amazing speeds.

At about 2 a. m. when the temperature was 63 degrees—exceedingly high for nighttime at this season of the year. After that it rained, accompanied by lightning and thunder, and then the cold started moving in.

By 6 a. m. it was 57 degrees and the rain had become a flaky snow. At 7 a. m. the temperature had dropped to 32 and two hours later at 9 a. m. the mercury showed 34. It dipped 10 more degrees for 24 degrees reaching at 10 a. m. and at noon was down to 20.

By 2 p. m. the reading was 15 and there was no sign of a stopping place in the downward trend.

It appears from the forecast that Sedalia can expect something between 5 above and 5 below tonight, with a cold Thursday a certainty.

The snow has been sporadic in its fall all morning and in the early part of the afternoon with no noticeable moisture content. The rain of Tuesday night measured a mere .41 inch.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A severe cold wave hit Missouri today after the southern part of the state had received welcome drought-easing rains.

The weather bureau is looking for the coldest weather of the season, possibly the worst since Dec. 15, 1951 when the mercury here dipped to 2 below zero.

Its forecast calls for lows tonight of 15 below in the extreme northwest to 5 above in the extreme southeast. And there won't be much moderation Thursday, with highs of zero to 5 below in the northeast to 5 to 10 above in the extreme southwest.

Fast falling temperatures and strong northerly winds marked the advance of the cold front into the state. The reading here at 2 a. m. was 35. At 9:30 a. m. the mercury had dropped to 15.

But there was cheer and hope in southern Missouri with arrival of heavy rains during the night. The rainfall exceeded an inch in many places with New Madrid reporting 1.85. Other reports included: Malden 1.75, Cape Girardeau 1.65, West Plains 1.55, Poplar Bluff 1.25, Marble Hill 1.30, Rolla 67, Springfield 61 and Joplin 34.

Farmers in southeast Missouri were reported hopefully feeling "This may be the end of the drought."

In the northern part of the state Kirksville had .80 of an inch of rain and elsewhere the precipitation turned to freezing rain as the cold wave moved in.

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman said the squadron of warships today sent to her Mers-El-Kebir base in Algeria—within easy striking distance of Spanish Morocco. But Paris officials said their arrival had no connection with France's warnings to Spain against any move to split the Madrid-ruled protectorate from the Sultanate of Rabat.

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman said the squadron, cruiser and an aircraft carrier, the Mediterranean base for target practice scheduled months ago.

Earlier reports indicated the naval array had been ordered to Algeria to back up the French warning. The Foreign Ministry announced yesterday that Spain had been told France would resist "with all the means at her disposal" any attempt to divide the Moroccan empire.

This "empire" includes both French and Spanish Morocco and the international zone at Tangier. The Sultan, whose palace is in Rabat, in the French zone, is the spiritual ruler. He also is nominally a temporal ruler but actual authority is exercised by the French and Spanish officials in the two North African protectorates.

The Foreign Ministry said the warning had been prompted by reports that a meeting of chiefs and religious leaders at the Spanish Moroccan capital of Tetuan tomorrow may proclaim as the rightful sovereign over Morocco's approximately nine million Moslems the man the French dethroned and exiled as Sultan last August—Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef.

Spain has refused to recognize the new Sultan, Mohamed Ben Moulay Arafat, named after Sidi Mohammed was deposed.

Highway 50 Association Meets Jan. 21

The second annual meeting of the Missouri Highway 50 Association will be held Thursday, Jan. 21, at Hotel Governor in Jefferson City, with a large group of Sedalia planning to attend.

The meeting will open at 10:30 a. m. with a welcome to members by E. V. Fryhoff, president of the Missouri Highway 50 Association. At 10:35 a. m. "The Tourist Dollar" — How to Get It Rolling Your Way, will be discussed by H. H. Mobley, director of Missouri Resources and Development; 11:35 p. m. "Missouri Highway — What We Need and How to Get It," by Milton Duval, president of the Missouri Good Roads Association; 11:55 a. m. appointment of the nominating committee.

The luncheon will be at 12 noon and at 1 p. m. "Missouri Highway — How You Can Help," by Rex Whitton, chief engineer of the Missouri Highway Commission; 2 p. m. official business of Missouri Highway 50 Association to be reported by officers, and an outline of the objectives and programs for 1954 discussed.

Ernest Freyman, Sedalia, is secretary of the Missouri Highway 50 Association and Chester A. Brown and Milton Hinlein are members of the board.

The association started in 1953 with a membership drive to increase the traffic over Highway 50 through Missouri, between Kansas City and St. Louis. Within a few weeks there were 300 members at memberships of $10. That was a good start for a goal of 1,000 members.

Much has been done during the year, starting with billboard advertising, which included a huge lighted board at the west end of the MacArthur Bridge, St. Louis. This board is in four colors and advises motorists to "Go U. S. Highway 50, the scenic route, St. Louis to Kansas City." They contracted May 1 to Oct. 1, 1953 for this board and an average of 17,000 cars daily passed the sign. The Lions Club of Union erected a lighted billboard to the east of the junction of 50 and 66 highways, for which the Association pays $25 a month as a contribution toward the cost and maintenance.

Also, Missouri Highway 50 maps were issued in four colors, of which between 35,000 and 40,000 have been distributed in Kansas, Colorado, Illinois and Missouri, plus considerable distribution by the Missouri Resources and Development Commission.

The Lake of the Ozarks Association. Approximately 60,000 are still on hand and available for the winter sport shows through travel agencies, by special agents and by members who have close contacts with the traveling public.

The association has been working with the Missouri Highway Commission for improvements in the markings to the existing route 50 in St. Louis County.

The National U. S. Highway 50 Association, which was one of the goals of the state group, came a step closer to an accomplished fact during a meeting of Missouri, Kansas and Colorado Highway 50 presidents at Clinton, Colo., on June 21. The Colorado Association agreed to work west with towns along U. S. Highway 50 to interest them in forming a national association, and Missouri would work east, to obtain support in Illinois, Indiana and on. Missouri

Third of Series On Howard Hughes--

Hughes Moans RKO Only 4 Pct. Of Holdings, Takes Most Time

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD — Howard Hughes moans that RKO Pictures forms less than 4 per cent of his 300-million-dollar empire, yet takes up 85 per cent of his time.

Some minority stockholders have gone to court to moan that Hughes spends 85 per cent too much of his time running the studio—and offer 20 million dollars in losses as evidence.

Hughes is a mechanical genius, but there are many in Hollywood who question that's the type of genius a movie studio needs. In a dog-eat-dog existence, decisions must be made on the spot. He who hesitates finds other producers already moving in on an idea.

Hughes' great knack for unavailability has proven his downfall at RKO. Take the case of producer Frank Ross and "The Robe."

Ross was a producer at RKO when he sewed up the screen rights of the Lloyd Douglas' best-seller.

But let Ross tell it: "We were all ready to roll several times, then down through a maze of secretaries, minor executives and mysterious telephone calls would come word that Howard didn't want to start it yet. One postponement followed another until I frankly felt that I was about to go out of my mind. I knew that if I could just sit down with Hughes for a few minutes, we could iron everything out and get this picture made."

to receive in the sale of the property. "Frank just wanted more money," says Hughes, "and my lawyers advised me to make myself unavailable."

Ross was not the only RKO executive who had trouble seeing the boss. Some even jokingly doubt that the man exists. He never has maintained an office at the studio, preferring instead to keep one at Goldwyn studio two miles away.

Whether he has even visited RKO is debatable. The favorite story is that he came in one morning around 2 o'clock, toured the lot silently and then gave a two-word order as he left: "Paint it." Another version has him never visiting the studio but flying low over it one morning and phoning the same order.

At any rate, the studio was painted not long afterward. Hughes, of course, denies all of this. He says he has been there several times.

Most of his work is done at night and in the early morning hours. Often he will sit with aides in a projection room at Goldwyn running off the RKO product and dictating memos. Jane Russell reports that Hughes notices the most minute details in the daily rushes.

"I've had him send me a memo wanting to know why I wore a lavender garter in one scene where he had ordered a pink one."

One of the movies that Hughes runs incessantly is "Jet Pilot," completed four years ago at a cost of four million dollars and still unreleased.

One aide who has fallen asleep many times in the projection room during the screening of this movie reports that Howard runs the air scenes over and over again, ordering retakes.

"He won't release this picture until the cloud formations hit him just right. He's the perfectionist to and all perfectionists," reports the aide—who prefers to remain anonymous.

The long time spent on the picture has enriched actor John Wayne, star of the film, some $750,000, a record payment for picture salary.

Wayne doesn't seem to mind whether the picture is released as long as he gets paid. "However," adds Wayne, "for Howard's sake, I think it should come out before very long. Even the jet age can't last forever."

The one who will probably suffer the most is Janet Leigh, an unknown when the picture was made. Even now, she is not the world's best actress. She can hardly expect to advance her career with a picture that will show her green, gawky and garbed in obsolete styles.

Those who have seen the picture call the air scenes the best since "Hell's Angels," usually rated the classic among Hollywood air films.

That picture, begun in 1928, established Hughes as the industry's most fabulous producer. No one, not even De Mille, has challenged him since.

"Hell's Angels" was made as a silent movie for three million, then a record budget. Greta Nissen, a Danish beauty, was the star but she never got in the theaters with the picture. Hughes saw his first talkie, scrapped much of the film and spent a million more to make it a talkie. He replaced the heavily accented Miss Nissen with an unknown named Jean Harlow. The picture made eight millions at the box office.

A lesser known Hughes discovery is Faith Domergue. She first met him when barely out of high school at a yacht party. The yacht was the million-dollar-Oceanica, a ship that resembled a miniature ocean liner.

She recalls that she was introduced to an untidily dressed chap she mistook for one of the crew. It was Hughes, owner of the yacht.

Howard dated her for lunch, took her for a plane ride, then took her home, met her parents—her father later went to work at Hughes Aircraft—and put her under contract. He told her he didn't expect to put her in a picture for some time, a classic understatement.

She soon became known as Hollywood's most unseen actress in the three-million-dollar movie "Vendetta," which Hughes held for years.

"I didn't mind being under contract to Howard. I studied, got married, lived in South America and had a baby and got a weekly salary all the while."

Actor George Dolenz practically made a career out of "Vendetta," the only picture he made in five years and always on payroll.

"I admire Howard, though," comments Dolenz. "He could have just squandered his father's money as some sons of rich men do."

Passenger's Fear Makes Driver Nervous, She Quits, Walks Off

TOLEDO, Ohio — Every time the bus skidded, the woman passenger let out a little shriek. Even when it just looked like it might skid, she hollered.

It was the kind of thing that would bother a man, much less a woman. And a woman, Mrs. Emily Jefferson, was the driver.

Finally she couldn't take it any longer. She pulled the bus to the curb, climbed out and announced: "You make me nervous. I quit."

The bus company said it understood and she could have her job back. "She was just nervous and upset and didn't want to run any risk," a spokesman explained.

Borrows Death House Method for Suicide

ROSLYN HEIGHTS, N. Y. (AP) — John Newton, 49, an electrical engineer, borrowed an idea from a prison death house yesterday — to kill himself.

In the basement of his house he wired a transformer to two metal plates to step up the house voltage, police said, and then fastened the plates to his body in front and back in the same manner as electrodes of an electric chair are fastened to a condemned person. Then he threw the switch.

Kidnapers Split Over Confession

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two one-time private detectives jailed as kidnapers in the "Case of the Kidnaped Twin" split up today—police said one confessed and blamed the other, who denied some of the story but essentially wouldn't talk.

The victim, short, round-faced Leonard Moskowitz, 36, was rescued unharmed and smiling yesterday morning after 2½ days of captivity. No ransom was paid despite demands of first $500,000 and then $300,000.

Under California's "Little Lindbergh Law," kidnapping with bodily harm carries a maximum penalty of death and a minimum of life without parole. Kidnaping without harm carries a penalty of life with the possibility of parole.

Moskowitz said he was not injured, but Dist. Atty. Thomas Lynch told newsmen the interpretation of bodily harm is up to a jury, which could decide that crime bonds or the like could mean injury. Moskowitz was bound and shackled during most of his imprisonment.

The two men arrested were seized separately. The first, Joseph William Lear, 43, of Sacramento, Calif., was caught in a telephone booth making a ransom call to the victim's identical twin and constant companion Alfred.

Police said Lear broke down and led them to a rented house, where a stocking-foot raiding party broke in, rescued Moskowitz and arrested 57-year-old Harold Jackson of Sacramento as he stood in his shorts. Jackson was shivering with fright, said Inspector Al Nelder, who named him.

The arrests ended the biggest San Francisco manhunt ever—and broke the best-kept secret of years. On police request, all news outlets voluntarily held back the story until Moskowitz was safe.

Police said Lear, a soft-faced and fearful hearing aid salesman, made a complete confession after he and Jackson had been booked on suspicion of kidnapping.

Chief Homicide Inspector Frank Ahern said Lear blamed the whole plot on Jackson. He said Lear related that he had believed he was working with Jackson on a detective case until Moskowitz was bundled into a house rented by Jackson and threatened with death unless Moskowitz's family paid $500,000 ransom.

Lear followed Jackson's lead from fear. Moskowitz himself said Lear kept muttering "I didn't know it was to be this kind of a job or I wouldn't have gone into it."

"Jackson seemed to be the leader," Moskowitz said. "Lear had ideas of his own but he had to get the okay on everything from Jackson."

Ahern questioned Lear's story of being duped into the kidnapping. He said earlier actions by the two indicated Lear knew what was up. Ahern said Lear and Jackson bought chains, ropes, flashlights and other gear in San Jose two days before the kidnapping for use in the job.

He also pointed out that Lear made ransom calls and was often left alone in the house and could have left at any time.

Jackson, a tall, erect man with a constant sneer, disagreed with Lear on about everything, said Inspector Don Scott. He reported Jackson denied much of Lear's story, disputed other parts and agreed with some.

The case began Saturday morning when Moskowitz was lured from his real estate office on a phony real estate prospectus.

He said Jackson took him to a residential district house supposedly to meet Jackson's brother-in-law and then shoved him into a chair and told him he was kidnapped. Moskowitz said Jackson held a razor-sharp knife on him but did not harm him.

Students Work to Earn Money for Pet Which Is Dead As It Arrives

PRAIRIE HOME, Mo. (AP)—Prairie Home seventh graders wanted a pet.

So for two days they sold popcorn and candy and finally made enough to send for an eight-inch baby alligator that cost $8.50. While waiting delivery they studied a book on the care of their new pet.

But when it arrived after a two-day trip by air mail, the alligator was dead, frozen stiff. Warm water failed to revive him.

The kids were heart broken but they didn't give up. They're going to earn some more money and try again.

Says Group Planned Smear Of DAV Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—The national adjutant of the Disabled American Veterans said today a New York State investigating committee set out to give the organization a "black eye" in advance of recent hearings on DAV's fundraising activities.

Vivian D. Corby of Cincinnati said in a statement prepared for a House Veterans Committee hearing that the New York State group "vilified" the DAV and its service foundation as a "charity racket."

Corby said DAV asked for the congressional hearing because it contended the New York group did not give it a "decent opportunity to refute the misinformation which was presented, to the public as so-called facts."

The New York legislative committee heard testimony that the DAV used none of 21 million dollars it collected from miniature auto tag sales as payments to needy veterans.

Corby said the organization did not claim to make such payments. He said testimony given to the New York committee by its own counsel, George Kerner, shows its "utter ignorance of the basic principles of rehabilitation."

"Disabled veterans don't want handouts," he asserted. "They need and want only the benefits to which they are rightfully entitled under the law, which the DAV spends its money to help them obtain."

Capt. Cicero F. Hogan of Washington, national DAV director of claims testified that the organization's service officers over the past 10 years have obtained more than 183 million dollars in benefits for disabled ex-servicemen and their dependents.

The DAV, headquartered in Cincinnati, manufactures and mails out key ring identification tags bearing automobile owners' auto license numbers. It asks donations in return. The House committee was told that nearly all the people who work in DAV's "identico tag" plant are disabled veterans or their close dependents.

Recommend Godfrey License Suspension

NEW YORK (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration today recommended suspension of Arthur Godfrey's airplane pilot's license.

The CAA recommendation went to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington for action to suspend the license of the television star for any period the CAB "may deem necessary."

Godfrey's private plane was involved in a near miss of the control tower at Teterboro, N. J., airport in a take-off Jan. 7.

The CAA held that the take-off "did not conform to the traffic pattern prescribed."

It said also that Godfrey "did not have in his possession a medical certificate or other evidence showing that he has met the physical requirements appropriate to his rating."

School Display At Courthouse

The monthly display in the reception room of the Courthouse office of C. F. Scotten, county superintendent of schools, was arranged this month by two county schools, Bothwell and Georgetown, under the direction of their respective teachers, Mrs. Hugh Marshall and Mrs. Virginia Farris.

The display consists of three wall panels of classroom projects, and a group of similar projects gathered on a table below. The panels are bordered with paper snowflake cutouts.

The center panel is dominated by a large water color painting of four herons in a bayou scene. Around it are posted a water color picture of Bothwell School, a poster containing the names and photographs of the Bothwell students, and several booklets on science, writing, arithmetic, "The Courtship of Miles Standish" and "Evangeline." Below the large painting are three paper mache Christmas tree balls suspended by ribbons.

The right panel contains more booklets on science, famous explorers, music, history, social studies, "The Courtship of Miles Standish" and "Evangeline."

The left panel centers around a poster labeled "Eat Good Food" and bearing pictures of animated vegetables and other foods. There are also three smaller health posters, two penmanship displays, a poster on courtesy and a snowman made of cut-out patterns.

The display will be up for the rest of January.

Alexander Used the First Sub, Modern Type Would Stun Him

GROTON, Conn. (AP)—Alexander the Great, who pined for more worlds to conquer, would gasp if he could be around here tomorrow to witness what has happened to submarines in his time.

The world's first atomic-powered submarine, the USS Nautilus, gets its shower of champagne then from Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower at the shipyard of the electric boat division of the General Dynamics Corp.

Step into the division's library, reputed to be the biggest exclusively devoted to submarines, and you learn that recorded history gives Alexander's name as the first to be linked to an undersea craft.

By Nautilus standards, it wasn't much of a boat. The Greek philosopher Aristotle described it as a diving bell. It was built for Alexander (356-323 B.C.) and used to repel a fleet attempting to lift the siege of Tyre.

The library staff, headed by Donald Shepard, has come up with a lot of other information pointing up the proud heritage that stretches behind the Nautilus.

For example: Leonardo da Vinci, the great Florentine inventor and artist of the Renaissance, planned an undersea water warship. But he kept it secret because he was afraid it would make war more frightful.

King James I of England reportedly took a short ride in one. It was distinguished by an oil-soaked leather covering and propelled by oars. A Dutchman, Cornelius Van Drebbel, built it a century after Da Vinci's death.

Americans made more submarine history during the Revolution. A Yale College student, David Bushnell, discovered how to explode gunpowder under water. To go with his discovery, he built a one-man submarine—a tiny oak vessel called the Turtle.

Great battle plans were made for the Turtle with Sgt. Ezra Lee, a Connecticut volunteer infantryman as commander and crew, the Turtle set out to destroy the British fleet lying in New York.

City Leaders Are 'Slaves' For Polio Fund

VISTA, Calif. (AP)—More than 125 businessmen, public officials and civic leaders were "slaves" here yesterday in a unique fund-raising project for the March of Dimes.

The "Slave Day" was the second phase of the polio fund-raising drive in this northern San Diego County community. Last month the men were auctioned off as "slaves" by Howard D. Cunneman, newspaper distributor. That project brought in more than $1,200. An additional $1,000 was collected yesterday.

The weekly Vista Press published a special edition yesterday and sold each copy for 25 cents. Publisher Everett Remsburg donated all the proceeds, approximately $300, to the March of Dimes.

Businessmen offered themselves to work in other stores from 1 to 5 p. m. A percentage of their sales went to the polio fund. Other "slaves" included a hardware store owner acting as a judge and a pastor as the sheriff.

"Slaves" who didn't show up were captured by a "posse" and led by "Sheriff" Graehne Smith, who normally is pastor of the Vista Community Church.

They were taken before "Judge" Frank Jones, a hardware store owner, who fined the violators a total of $100. Attorneys donated their time to plead their clients' cases—but needless to say the prosecution won all of them.

Leon Bone, Vista's regular judge in justice court, meanwhile was working behind a counter in a coffee shop.

Other businessmen and civic leaders helped shine shoes and collect newspaper subscriptions, with part of the money going to the March of Dimes. Others carried out packages from food markets and waited on tables at various cafes.

Robert Young Quits C&O, To Get NYC

NEW YORK (U) — Robert R. Young, clear of all connections with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad, was free today to achieve his ambition of controlling the New York Central System—if he can.

The 56-year-old Texas-born financier dropped a bombshell in financial and railroad circles with the announcement last night that he and a group of associates are quitting the C&O and severing all ties that in the past have kept him sitting on the Central board.

The C&O announced that Young had resigned as board chairman of the C&O. With him went his companion in an astonishing rise to power, Allan P. Kirby, who stepped out as president of the railroad.

For years Young—the most discussed and unorthodox figure in American railroad—has talked of controlling the Central.

While Young himself made no statement last night announcements by the C&O and by the Allegheny Corp., holding company of which Young is board chairman, left small doubt of what he is after now.

Other C&O directors, all of them with financial interests in Allegheny or its subsidiaries, also resigned from the C&O board.

They were James Blaine, Henry Guild, Harry Thompson and Andrew Van Pelt.

At the same time, the C&O announced that Allegheny had sold all its remaining holds in the C&O—104,854 shares of common stock owned by Cyrus S. Eaton.

Eaton, wealthy Cleveland industrialist, Eaton was unanimously elected board chairman to succeed Young.

Since 1951 Eaton has been the C&O's largest individual stockholder. He now owns 205,854 C&O shares and, according to the C&O, is interested in a company owning 45,000 more shares. The total market value of all these shares is nearly nine million dollars.

The C&O announced further that all ties between Allegheny Corp. and the C&O will be severed—contractual, lease, and joint salary arrangements.

"With this action, Allegheny Corp. and Mr. Young and Mr. Kirby are completely divesting themselves of control of C&O and are free to acquire control of another carrier," the C&O announced.

"Mr. Young and Mr. Kirby and other Allegheny directors and officers are now free to seek or accept directorships on another carrier."

Allegheny Corp. then issued the following brief statement: "Allegheny Corp., Allan P. Kirby and Robert R. Young have become substantial stockholders of New York Central."

The extent of Young's present holdings of New York Central stock could not be learned immediately.

The C&O owns—or did own yesterday—800,000 shares of Central stock, 12 1/2 per cent of the outstanding common. This big interest is now separate and distinct from whatever amount Young and his associates control.

The C&O and the Allegheny Corp.—the "Young interests" then—obtained working control of the New York Central as early as 1947. But they were forbidden from exercising it by the Interstate Commerce Commission in a move against interlocking railroad directorates. The Central stock was deposited in voting trusts.

Young, aided by Woolworth heir Kirby and with a "shoe-string" investment of three million dollars, took control of the 900-million-dollar Allegheny Corp. in 1937 and, in turn, more than a billion dollars worth of railroad facilities.

He rebuilt the bankrupt Van Sweringen railroad empire during the subsequent 10 stormy years of railroad operation. It was in 1947 that Allegheny bought 162,500 shares of New York Central at a reported price of 2 1/2 million dollars.

Veterinarian Sees Only One Difference Between Humans, Dogs

SALT LAKE CITY (U)—Dogs are more down-to-earth than humans. But that's about the only difference, a California veterinarian says.

Dr. R. A. Stocking of Los Angeles is attending the convention of the Intermountain Veterinary Medical Assn. here. He thinks that hound of yours may have the same troubles, emotions and thoughts you do.

Your dog may dream, have ulcers, be intelligent or dull-witted. He may become nervous and upset if he sees you beating your wife. Which may be why Dr. Stocking says he believes the world would be better if there were more dogs and fewer humans.

If you want your dog to be normal, give him a normal home life, the Los Angeles veterinarian says. Dogs are just as much affected by their surroundings, he reports, as humans.

ROUTSZONG MOTOR CO. IS SHOWING THE '54 OLDSMOBILE—Road-hugging beauty and a smooth ride are characteristic of this lowest of Oldsmobiles, the 1954 model, with road height of 60.5 inches as exemplified in this Super "88" four-door sedan. The custom-styled panoramic windshield greatly increases forward vision and helps accent the low contour hood and rear deck. The wrap-around windshield gracefully merges with the new keyhole-shaped wind vent. The cowl-side ventilator with stainless steel intake grille improves the heating and fresh air ventilating system, which is incorporated in a compact unit at the rear of the engine compartment. Interior appointments are luxurious, with three upholstery color choices in two types of nylon cloth. Powering the Super "88" is a more powerful 185-h.p. "Rocket" engine.

Western Buyer Says Cowmen Are Larger From Head to Toe

DENVER (U) — It isn't only in their feet that cowmen are bigger than they used to be. They're bigger all over.

A Denver buyer of Western clothes, noting a boot salesman's observation that the famous Western boot is several sizes larger than it was in bygone years, said today the same holds true for clothing.

Take pants, for instance. "The average rancher doesn't ride a horse as much as he used to," the buyer said. "He uses a truck or a jeep for a lot of his work. Result: his hips and waistline are expanding. Pants sizes now run 34 to 36."

It's different with the rodeo cowboys, who do a lot of the stiffest kind of riding. They keep their weight down so their trouser sizes run mostly 30 to 33.

The rodeo hand's favorite hat now is a "dogger style" number with a four-inch brim.

Bandits Bind and Gag Four, Flee With Loot Worth Nearly $4,000

DENVER (U) — Two masked bandits bound and gagged a wealthy wholesale liquor operator, his wife, daughter and the family maid and escaped with loot totaling nearly $4,000 last night.

Police said the bandits gained admittance to the home of Joseph Zerobnick by ringing the doorbell and shouting, "Special delivery."

Once inside, police said, they carefully bound and gagged Zerobnick, manager of the Midwest Liquor Co., his wife Goldie, a daughter Natalie, 12, and the maid, Rita Thompson.

Zerobnick said he attempted to hide his billfold under a footstool but a gunman grabbed it. It contained $3,000, he told officers.

The two also took a $350 diamond ring from Zerobnick, a $500 diamond ring from his wife and $20 from her purse.

Ranchers Sell Wooden Calves to Cowboys For Roping Practice

DENVER (U) — Rancher John Kreger Jr. of Sheridan, Wyo., is pushing a business sideline at the National Western Stock Show here.

The sideline: selling imitation wooden calves for rodeo cowboys to practice roping.

The sales line: "You can practice right in your home, basement or garage, in all kinds of weather."

Kreger said he has sold about 200 at $40 a head.

Prisoner Says He Eats Light Bulbs for Ulcers

OKLAHOMA CITY (U) — Joseph B. Vanaalst, 29, says he eats light bulbs because they're good for his ulcers.

The county jail physician says he has no ulcers.

Prosecutors charge that Vanaalst, who also has been known to hide razor blades under his false teeth, is trying to create the impression he is crazy to avoid trial for robbery.

A District Court jury ruled yesterday he was sane. Trial begins today.

He Believes In Signs

DALLAS, Tex. (U) — The boy came in the grocery store and looked hurriedly at each carton of eggs in the grocer's rack.

Each was labeled, "All new. All fresh. All white."

The youngster thrust the box toward the clerk and demanded: "Don't you have any with yellow in them?"

Argentina Proposes That Mexico Join It In Economic Treaty

MEXICO CITY (U) — President Juan Peron's Argentine government, already strengthening its trade ties with South American countries, has proposed that Mexico join it in an economic treaty.

The suggestion was made by representatives of the Argentine Embassy who were here last night with about 50 prominent Mexican businessmen and business visitors from Argentina.

The businessmen of the two nations agreed to meet again in February to organize a Mexican-Argentine commercial development commission to push trade between the two Latin-American countries.

Troopers Beat Radio Relay, Put Out Fire

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (U) — State Troopers William K. Sankbell and William Pitzer discovered a fire in a home while cruising yesterday at nearby Hedgesville.

They radioed Martinsburg police to send a fire truck, but the Martinsburg radio wasn't strong enough to pick up the signal. Then they radioed Romney, W. Va., police, who radioed the Police Department at Winchester, Va., who radioed the Police Department at Martinsburg, W. Va., who phoned the Fire Department.

But before the fire engine arrived, Sankbell and Pitzer had formed a bucket brigade and put out the fire.

Merry-Go-Round

Ike's First Year In Office One Of Great Changes and Education

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON. — It is now exactly one year since Dwight Eisenhower entered the White House, a year that has been one of great education and has seen great changes. Here is a thumbnail sketch of the Ike of today:

Ike and business—A year ago Eisenhower's economic theories sounded like a National Association of Manufacturers pamphlet. Now he has swung back halfway to the ideas expressed at the F Street Club right after the war which so shocked Republican backers. "If men's lives were conscripted in wartime," Ike said at the F Street Club dinner, "why shouldn't profits be conscripted too?" . . . Ike is more conservative than in those immediate prewar years, but less so than a year ago. Today he doesn't believe in a complete hands-off policy toward business. Nor does he believe that the doctrine of State's Rights, so loudly proclaimed a year ago, constitutes a cure-all for everything.

Ike and economy—No longer does the President believe he can balance the budget, nor does he view government-spending with anathema, as he did a year ago. He is willing to put his foot in government-spending water as an offset to recession worries. But he is a long way from taking the big spending plunge . . . and some of the economists around him recall that it takes a lot of spending to halt a business slide once it starts . . . Ike has changed his mind about creeping socialism and the Tennessee Valley; has already set aside $105,000,000 to start another "creeping socialism" project on the St. Lawrence, once the seaway project passes Congress . . . the economy bloc in the Eisenhower administration, notably Secretary George Humphrey and budget director Joe Dodge, still remain Ike's close friends, but he doesn't follow their advice as much as formerly . . . sometimes the Chief Executive is unhappily torn between the two wings of his official family.

New Advisers

Men around Ike—A man who's had little experience in civilian government is almost completely dependent on the men around him. That's why it's significant that a new flank of advisers has moved in around the president . . . they aren't liberal by the Harry Hopkins standard, but they are far more progressive than the big-business golfing partners who used to move over from Sea Island to Augusta when Ike went to the "Georgia White House." . . . some wisecrackers call them "hucksters" rather than liberals, and it's true that the new flank is passionately concerned with upping Ike's Gallup Poll rating . . . however, they include Kevin McCann, president of the Defiance College; Charles Moore, up-and-coming former public relations adviser to Ford Motors; Dr. Arthur Burns, liberal head of the Council of Economic Advisers; C. D. Jackson, former publisher of Fortune Magazine and the man who pushed Ike into the Atomic-pool speech; and Robert Cutler, Boston banker who got into the White House through Felix Frankfurter . . . this group is unanimously anti-McCarthy and unanimously opposed to the right-wing GOP. They are pulling Ike to get back to the middle-of-the-road course where he once had the support of many Democrats.

Ike and Congress—Congressional relations is a field that greatly worries the President. At first he figured he could "good-will" members of Congress, that White House luncheons, personal conversations would keep Congressmen in line . . . now he is a wiser man. Nothing but a strong and successful policy, he has begun to realize, can keep Congress with him . . . and he still hasn't learned this completely . . . when Senator Knowland kicked over the traces on funneling of defense orders to depressed areas; when Sam Rayburn reacted vigorously to criticism of Democratic spending, the President was hurt and bewildered. He still is a long way from understanding politics.

Veering Toward Europe

Ike and Foreign Policy—This is the field that Eisenhower knows best and where he is determined to chalk up notable achievements. Here he has been more consistent than in domestic policy, but sometimes so cautious that his own advisers get impatient . . . it took time to get him to make the $15,000,000 food gift to East Germany last spring, a move actually initiated by the State Department and which met with immediate success. Later, when an old-clothes drive was planned to help the East Germans, the Summer White House in Denver misplaced Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's letter for three weeks and the clothes drive never did get under way . . . the President also hesitated three months before he made his speech proposing the pooling of atomic energy, and the speech was rewritten 20 times . . . on foreign affairs generally, Ike has switched from the China Bloc's view that the U. S. A. must concentrate on the Far East. He is now veering more toward Europe . . . his over-all policies remain the same as those laid down in the Truman administration but, after all, both Dulles and Eisenhower were among those appointed to carry those policies forward.

Ike the man—After one year in the White House, the President works harder than before. Sensitive to criticism that he is lazy, he plays less golf and makes more decisions himself. During early months as President Ike tried to delegate almost everything, even bawled out his staff when they called him back from burning tree on the instruction of the National Security Council to make a major decision on Korea . . . the President still loses his temper, still chews out his staff, still likes to delegate authority. It is these bursts of temper that send his blood pressure and worry his doctors . . . but Ike knows that his entire career is now in the balance and is determined that the verdict of history will be favorable . . . in many respects he does not like the Presidency, wishes he had never been persuaded to run. Few people realize the loneliness of living in the White House, the inability to relax, the impossibility of obtaining privacy . . . though he doesn't like his job, Dwight Eisenhower is determined to do the best job he can, but he is also determined that he will not run again.

One Way to Gain Weight Is Increase Caloric Intake

By Edwin P. Jordan, M.D.

Two teen-aged boys have recently written that, instead of being troubled with overweight they are abnormally skinny, and would like to add some pounds.

In general, being overweight is much more of a health problem than being underweight. There are some, however, who could profit health-wise as well as in appearance by putting on some weight.

In the absence of any definite disease responsible for abnormal thinness, nearly everyone, even teen-aged youngsters, can put on weight if they go about it in the right way. Perhaps the easiest way to discuss it is to explain a little about the nature of the problem.

The human body operates like a machine for which food-fuel is converted into energy and used up in physical and mental activity. There are, therefore, two ways to gain weight: one to cut down on the activity output or exercise and the other to increase the food intake, or simply, eat more.

The fuel intake can be increased in several ways. One of them is to choose the foods which have the highest energy or caloric value since these can be changed into weight as well as into work. The starches or carbohydrates and fats supply more energy and have more effect on weight than proteins do.

Must Keep Balance

Balance must be maintained in the diet, however. It is not wise to cut out the fruits, vegetables, meat, milk and eggs which supply substances which help to maintain good health, particularly for those still growing.

Another thing which can be done besides choosing the right diet is to eat more at each meal. The amount eaten is largely a matter of habit and the stomach can be trained to hold more by gradually increasing the amount eaten at each meal. One good way to do this is to eat until the appetite is satisfied and then take a few more mouthfuls.

Bragging Can Be Profitable, If You Boast About Others

By Ruth Millett

One of the bragging willets I know is also one of the best liked.

But here's the catch. She never boasts of herself. She always brags on others.

If you're a friend of Sue's you know how smart her other friends are.

She seems to have a knack for finding out what people are proud of but too modest to boast about, and passing the knowledge along. Instead of talking about other people's troubles and problems and mistakes, she prefers to talk about their good points, their small triumphs, and their accomplishments.

And it works wonders. For it makes for cheerful talk. And somehow you know that if she tells the best about her other friends, she'll do the same thing when she talks about you.

Such A Person Wins Our Esteem, Friendship

What's more, that kind of talk often gets back to the person it was about. And how much kinder we feel toward the person who has been spreading something good about us, than about the person who has been telling the world about our shortcomings and faults.

So everyone likes Sue. And Sue, because she makes it a practice to look for the good in people instead of looking for their faults, likes most people, too.

It's a great temptation to most people to do a little bragging now and then. But Sue has discovered the one way that it can be done profitably, by bragging about other people.

If more people discovered that secret there wouldn't be such a great temptation to most folks to brag about themselves.

Dean Can Dish It, Too

Though it has not been reported in detail, U.S. Special Ambassador Arthur H. Dean has been dishing it out as well as having to take it in his seven weeks of haggling with Chinese Communist negotiators over the Korean peace treaty arrangements at Panmunjom.

The U. S.-South Korea delegation has consisted of only four principal negotiators for the United Nations side. They have been pitted against anywhere from 25 to 40 Communist negotiators. One of the Chinese Red advisers has been a Harvard Ph.D. with a thorough knowledge of American policy and perfect mastery of English.

Much of the argument has been over admission of Russia to the peace conference. In one session a Chinese Red confronted Ambassador Dean with an American newspaper clipping in which U. S. Sen. William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) was quoted as accusing the Russians of never keeping a promise or an agreement.

In the light of that, the Reds wanted to know why the UN was insisting that the Russians be present? In that instance, Dean and his team had to take it.

In another exchange, the UN negotiating team was insisting that Russia be given an engraved invitation to the peace conference. It was absolutely necessary that Russia be there.

"That cannot be!" broke in Wang Huang-hua, chief Red negotiator and the number four or number five Communist in China. He said it before the translator put the English statement in Chinese.

The UN delegates got the laugh on that one, for the Chinaman had been insisting all along that he did not speak English. They had trapped him neatly.

Nike Controversy

Department of Defense and the Army are having another rumpus over recent public release of news and pictures on the anti-aircraft guided missile known as the "Nike."

This is the second time the "Nike" program has run afoul of Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson's orders for tighter security. Last spring he halted elaborate Army plans for public showing of the revolutionary new weapon.

The World Today— Ike Ponders Year as Chief

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — When President Eisenhower "hopped out of bed this morning and looked in the mirror, he may have thought: 'How did I ever come to let myself in for this?'"

He had moved into the White House one year ago. And it had been a tough, grinding year. The face which gazed back at him in the mirror looked a little older. Not much. Just a little.

But if he wondered why he had been willing to carry on his back that mountain called the presidency, it was probably a thought that lasted only an instant.

He was still as jaunty as ever, working harder and longer hours, perhaps, than any he had endured since those days on the eve of the invasion of Normandy, nearly 10 years ago.

He seemed, judging from the quick grin he could produce, to be enjoying his job. He was still enormously popular. And he was still amazingly free from personal abuse.

He was wiser, no doubt, than he had been that day a year ago when he stood for hours watching the Inaugural Parade. In his first year, he frankly concedes, he was a political novice. He doesn't claim political mystery now.

His handling of Congress this year will illustrate his political development, or lack of it. Last year he was mild and gentle with the lawmakers. Some of his critics said he was more anxious to be liked than to lead.

His friends gave another explanation: he was using 1953 to get his program ready for 1954, so there was no reason in 1953 to antagonize legislators whose help he might otherwise get for his program this year.

Last year he had Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio doing much of the in-fighting for him at the Capitol. Taft's dead now, and no one around can take Taft's place in a hurry.

Toward the end of his first year, Eisenhower gave signs of a toughening attitude, which may be an indication of the mood he'll use in 1954.

That was when Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) made his unexpected criticism of Eisenhower's continued aid to allies who trade with Red China. Secretary of State Dulles replied, defending his policy, and Eisenhower backed Dulles.

Looking Backward . . .

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

A. F. Thaviu, noted band director, who for several years had been at the Missouri State Fair with his exposition band, was in the city and arranged for return of that organization for the 1929 fair.

— 1929 —

Members of the Elks were enjoying their new home, Fourth and Kentucky, having moved furniture and other equipment there from the hall at Third and Lamine on Friday, Jan. 18.

— 1929 —

At the Liberty Theatre for the week starting Jan. 20, Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" was the attraction in talkies, then declared "the greatest picture of the age."

— 1929 —

A slot machine that had been broken open, and its content of money extracted, was found at Missouri and Jefferson. The owner of the machine was not immediately located.

FORTY YEARS AGO

On Monday, W. W. McClure sold his farm of 155 acres, three miles west of Hughesville, to Judge C. W. McAninch.

— 1914 —

Joe Kain purchased from A. Chasoff the Globe department store, 105-107 West Main. Mr. Chasoff sold the business to engage in the ladies ready-to-wear apparel business. Mr. Kain sold his former stock of goods to M. Fredkin at 111 West Main.

— 1914 —

P. E. Holmesley, of Excelsior Springs, returned here after being called here to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Jane Holmesley.

The budget in appropriations for the year, as presented the city council by its finance committee, proposed a division of funds as follows: Charity, $4,400; contingent fund $4,000; city engineer's department $3,800; fire department $11,000; police department $9,500; lighting account $9,400; street department $12,000; water account $7,400; salaries $7,500; Liberty Park $3,000.

Come A-Smokin'

Copyright 1952 by Nelson Nye. Reproduced by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Apparently mistaken for another man in the Arizona town of Bella Loma, Greta Marratt, an escaped convict, is wounded by an unseen gunman. When he regains consciousness, he finds himself handcuffed and made comfortable in a house. The good Samaritan also had left a gun by his side. Hearing someone coming, Marratt waits, pistol in hand.

III

The person who opened the door had his left arm piled with groceries. He looked to be about 60; a tall, grizzled man in a black alpaca with a black San An tugged low above eyes that flicked toward the couch, fanned outward a little and came swiveling around until they picked up Marratt.

He gave no evidence of being disconcerted. "Expect you're feeling some better," he commented, booting the door shut and fetching his parcels on over to the table. "How's the appetite?"

"Suppose we talk about you." "Pretty dull subject." The tall man offered a fleeting smile. "You can put that gun down, Luke; I won't bite you."

Marratt said: "Start talking!" The tall man eyed him a moment longer. But when the hammer clicked back under Marratt's thumb he shrugged and said dryly, "All right. What about?"

"About how we got hooked up with each other."

"No mystery about that. I picked you out of the slop of the road during that storm we had here the other night. Been doing the best I can to take care of you—"

"For a price, of course," Marratt's lips turned bitter.

"Anger darkened the other's cheeks. Then he said coldly to Marratt, "I guess you haven't changed much, Usher."

"We'll speak of that later."

Right now I want to know who you are, what's your angle and why you stuck me in this empty house."

"All right. I'm Doc Frailey, as you know. Night before last I found you lying unconscious outside the gate. I fetched you here because it was handy, because you happen to own it and because I wasn't at all sure you'd be wanting folks to know you'd come back after 15 years."

Marratt said, fishing: "Run out on a bill, did I?" "Some might be tempted to put it that way."

They considered each other for a couple of moments. Frailey said scornfully, "How long has this amnesia been bothering you?"

Marratt shook his head. "Have you forgotten, telling round how you were going to put a window through Clem Ryerson's skull?"

"So I killed this big mogul and dug for the tules, eh?" "You never went near him—never even waited for your old man's funeral!"

MARRATT'S look turned thoughtful. "You know," he said, "Frailey, you could be mistaken."

"You asked and I told you."

"How'd you get onto me?"

"It wasn't quick," Frailey sighed. "Knew I'd seen you before but it was finding you there, not 40 yards from this house, that finally put my wheels to churning. Time I'd got you inside and scraped off some of the muck I was sure. The picture clinched it."

Marratt's eyes narrowed. "Picture?"

"Old Jake's. Above the couch. You can't miss the resemblance. Marratt put aside the gun. He scrubbed a hand across his eyes. "How bad's this hole in my side?"

"Cracked rib. You'll get over it."

"Why do you reckon I've come back?"

The tall man looked at him sharply, then he glanced at his watch and put it back in his pocket. "I don't know—I don't want to know. I don't want any part in it."

"Who was Ryerson? Why did I threaten to kill him?"

The doc studied him quite awhile. "I'd rather you found those things out from someone else."

"I've already been shot once. If you didn't think I was in danger why'd you leave me that gun?"

"The gun was here. It belonged to your father."

Marratt, eying it, said slowly, "It's been well taken care of."

Frailey shook his head and waved a hand at the wall. "It was hanging in that gun belt. I took it apart. I cleaned it and oiled it." He said on an irritable gust of breath: "Don't ask me why—I just did, that's all!"

A MEAGER smile tugged the corners of Marratt's mouth.

"Why hide your light under a bushel, Doc? It was a generous impulse; particularly in a man who thinks as poorly of me as you do."

"I wasn't thinking about you!" "You must have thought a good deal of Jake Usher then. Did Ryerson kill him?"

Frailey opened his mouth, changed his mind and strode downward. But halfway there he spun back. "All right. I'll tell you. When you were tanked up, you claimed Clem Ryerson killed Jake. You were in the Red Horse Bar, yowling what you would do to him. But when they got you sober enough to know wild honey from cow hide you got right into a saddle and commenced laying tracks for the border."

Marratt sighed.

"You had folks on your side up till then," Frailey grumbled. "Now the boots on the other foot and you're a foot twice over."

Democrat Pick-Ups

Odds and Ends By News Staff

THE LITTLE GIRL informed her music teacher that she wasn't going to take music lessons any more.

"You're not?" said the surprised teacher.

"No," explained the child, "I don't see any sense in learning the keyboard and the notes, too!" —H. L.

THEIR RADIO is a wonderful thing. Fire truck number two arrived at a fire at the home of Mrs. Charles T. Gorrell, 1502 South Montebello, when one of the firemen realized that dinner was on the stove at the fire station.

He called the police station by two-way radio and exclaimed: "We're busy, will you go over and turn out the fire under the beans?" The assignment was carried out. —D.K.S.

SOMEHOW THERE has never been anything more upsetting than a new girl in school, especially a pretty one, who gets the boys all up in the air and gives the girls a real let down.

Such a thing has happened in one of the school rooms here lately and as one little girl put it: "She is nice and she is cute—but she has taken all our boy friends."

Well, it seems the manner in which the boys show their love nowadays is to put their initials in a plus sign and then the initials of the queen of their heart, on their shoes. One of the boys had been going around proudly with the initials "D. S. plus L. B." on his shoes and then along came the new girl. Like all the rest of the boys he had a brand new love affair and that called for changing the initials on his shoes. So the "L. B." was changed to "P. S.", and then there came a question. There was another little girl in the room whose initials were "P. S." and he was asked if she was the one.

He hadn't thought of that and he had to do something about it. After all he did want everybody to know who his favorite girl was at the moment and the old system just wasn't working, so he did something else. He put a small "H" just after the Capital "S", so there would be no mistaking. That was the second letter of her last name and people should know from that exactly who his heart-beat was. —H. L.

Mother Has Baby, Walks Half Block to Phone Husband to Come Home

CARTHAGE (AP) — Mrs. Homer Silvers, 37, gave birth to a 5 pound 15 ounce son here yesterday, then called her husband to come and take her to the hospital.

Mrs. Silvers delivered the child unattended, walked to a neighbor's house a half block away and called her husband, a cab driver on duty, to pick her up.

Silvers summoned hospital attendants who called a physician to the home. The doctor took the baby to the hospital and Mrs. Silvers followed in her husband's cab. It was Mrs. Silvers' 13th child.

Oldest Senator Is a Tennis Player and Swimmer at 86

By HAL BOYLE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Anybody for tennis?

Well, Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island is. At 86 Green, the oldest U.S. senator, says tennis is still his best sport—and he prefers to play singles.

"But it is hard to find a good opponent," he complained mildly. "I got out on the court only once last year."

The senator hates to miss his tennis because that leaves him only one other athletic exercise—swimming.

"I have given up high diving and wrestling, which was my second favorite sport," he said, "and I just never seem to find the time to go mountain climbing any more."

"I'm interested in too many things—that's my trouble. I like to wander in so many alleys of life. I feel I ought to read this, or do that. I'm curious about everything. I don't know whether it's a good habit or a bad one."

Green, a gray-mustached little man with the spirit of a thrifty cricket, is in many ways the most unusual member of the Senate. Descendant of a three-centuries-old New England Yankee family, he is a New Deal Democrat, a bachelor, and one of the five wealthiest senators. Yet he walks 2½ miles to his office every morning, and usually takes a bus or trolley car home.

Few men in Congress can match his active social life—"I rarely dine alone"—and few have traveled abroad more widely on official missions. A younger congressman who made one trip with him said:

"He wears us out. He's up early and late—and always as fresh as a daisy."

Green, who recently returned from visiting 13 South American countries, likes to eat native dishes wherever he goes.

"I love to meet people and get to know them," he said, "and the best way to get people to accept you as one of them is to follow their customs."

The senator, who began his career here in his 70th year, rarely makes speeches, but is meticulously busy in committee activities, where the real work of Congress is done.

"The Senate is his life," said Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas, Democratic leader. "He is one of the wisest men here, but very firm of principle. When it is time for a position to be taken, you won't find Sen. Green heading for the door. And you never have any trouble locating him if a close vote is coming up."

"He is younger than many a man of 60,"

Green feels that one way to retain a youthful outlook is to have both an indoor hobby and an outdoor hobby.

"My present indoor hobby—my latest and last love—is Chinese paintings," he said. "But I have collected things all my life, from stamps and shells and seaweeds to etchings and books on Rhode Island history."

Interesting items in his past collections: a piece of the Atlantic cable, a bottle of water from the River Jordan, and a glove he wore as a boy when he shook hands with President Rutherford B. Hayes.

"Unfortunately, I shook hands with Hayes with my right hand but found later I had saved the left hand glove," he said. "It seemed quite a tragedy to me when I first discovered my mistake—but I have gotten over it."

President Hayes died in 1893. Sen. Green, who once taught Roman law at Brown University, has a long view of history and is optimistic about the future.

"There is a threat to the world in the conflict between liberal and reactionary forces," he said, "but I think the liberal forces will prevail."

"Things may not be as efficient in some ways under a Democracy as under another form of government, but the people are happier. And that's the test. The world is progressing. It is a wonderful thing merely to be alive in it and to have a chance to help make it better."

The senator takes with wry aplomb his reputation of still being one of the capital's most eligible bachelors.

"Is it because of my sweet disposition," he asked with a cricket grin, "or because I could pay a wife's bills?"

Joe Parks says he dreads to think of all the headaches and stomach upsets he'll have to suffer after Christmas and New Year's, but it will all be in a good cause, so he's not going to hold back on his celebrating.

When it is time for a position to be taken, you won't find Sen. Green heading for the door. And you never have any trouble locating him if a close vote is coming up."

Sacred Heart Wins 80 to 56 Over Smithton

The Sacred Heart Gremlins, after recovering from a losing streak, smothered the Smithton Tigers on Tuesday night 80 to 56 on the Smithton court.

Sacred Heart jumped into an early eight point lead and held it until late in the first quarter. Then Bob DeWitt, the Tigers' star came through with three field goals to end the period 14 to 10. DeWitt has been slowed down most of the season with a bad leg and is still having trouble.

In the second quarter, the Gremlins really got to rolling as Stohr and Seifner contributed three field goals apiece. DeWitt and Fletcher were giving S-H most of its trouble, as both tallied seven points. The period ended with 22 for Sacred Heart and 15 to Smithton for a total 36 to 25 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Gremlins' McKee, a small sophomore, stepped into the picture and started pouring the ball through the hoop. The Grems continued to gain, as they tallied 21 to the Tigers' 14. The final period of play saw 23 points for the Grems and 17 for Smithton to end the battle 80 to 56.

Fendell McKee led the winners' attack with 19 points, followed by Stohr with 16. Bob DeWitt paced the Tigers with 23, which was high for the entire game. He was followed by Gayle Fletcher with 12.

The Gremlins play again Friday night at the Sacred Heart gym when they meet the La Monte Vikings in a PBCAA conference battle.

In the girls' volleyball game the Smithton team won by a score of 17 to 12.

Smith and Todd tied for scoring honors for the winners while Pfeiffer led for Sacred Heart.

Two Forwards Top Scorers In Mo. Valley

ST. LOUIS — Forwards Cleo Littleton of Wichita and Guy Sparrow of Detroit, whose teams represent extremes in performance, are the one-two scoring leaders this week in Missouri Valley Conference basketball.

Littleton is tops with a 23-point average in four games—all won by Wichita to make the shockers the leaders in the championship race.

Sparrow is the runnerup with an 18.4-point average, although Detroit's Titans still seek a victory after five Valley starts. Sparrow, the only senior on Detroit's roster, got the best of Littleton last week, scoring 23 points to Littleton's 20 as Wichita clubbed the Titans, 91-61.

Third man in Valley scoring this week is sophomore center Jim McLaughlin of St. Louis, an ex-recruit to a total 36 to 25 at the half.

In the third quarter, the Gremlins' McKee, a small sophomore, stepped into the picture and started pouring the ball through the hoop. The Grems continued to gain, as they tallied 21 to the Tigers' 14. The final period of play saw 23 points for the Grems and 17 for Smithton to end the battle 80 to 56.

Fendell McKee led the winners' attack with 19 points, followed by Stohr with 16. Bob DeWitt paced the Tigers with 23, which was high for the entire game. He was followed by Gayle Fletcher with 12.

The Gremlins play again Friday night at the Sacred Heart gym when they meet the La Monte Vikings in a PBCAA conference battle.

In the girls' volleyball game the Smithton team won by a score of 17 to 12.

Smith and Todd tied for scoring honors for the winners while Pfeiffer led for Sacred Heart.

S-C Tigers Leave For Invitational Tournament

The Smith-Cotton Tigers left today for the Fulton Invitational Tournament in which they will compete along with many other teams entered there.

Central Missouri teams. Some of the teams entered other than Smith-Cotton include University High of Columbia, Owensville, Fulton, Mexico, Hickman High of Columbia, Jamestown, Jefferson City, Eldon, Hermann, and the Missouri School for the Deaf.

The tournament began Tuesday night and will continue through Saturday.

The Hannibal High School's Pirates, recent victors over the S-C Tigers, are seeded No. 1 in the annual affair which was held in the Fulton High School gymnasium. The Hannibal team played the opening tournament game with the Washington, Mo. High School team.

Smith-Cotton's opening game will be with the Fulton team. The Fulton team will have the advantage over the local cagers, but should the Sedalia team score as freely in contest as they did in the recent Kemper game, Smith-Cotton should slip by the Fulton team.

NBA Governors Meet First Time Since Molinas Gambling Case

NEW YORK — The Board of Governors of the National Basketball Association meets here today for the first time since the Jack Molinas gambling case broke.

Molinas, rookie star of the Fort Wayne Pistons, was suspended indefinitely on Jan. 10 by League President Maurice Podoloff for betting on games.

Podoloff is expected to outline plans for a permanent investigation staff, such as maintained by organized baseball and thoroughbred horse racing, in an attempt to thwart any further gambling.

The New York Knickerbockers, leaders of the Eastern Division in the NBA, were hard pressed in their 78-75 victory over the Milwaukee Hawks last night.

In other games, the Philadelphia Warriors broke a four-game losing streak by defeating the Boston Celtics 89-73 and the second-place Rochester Royals handed the on-rushing Fort Wayne Pistons a 73-67 setback.

'Frosty' England Gets Toledo U. Coach Spot

TOLEDO, Ohio — Forest W. (Frosty) England, who piloted the Arkansas State College football squad through eight successful seasons, will be the University of Toledo's new head football coach and director of the athletic department.

The 41-year-old England will take over the combination post March 1 at a salary of $8,500 a year on a three-year contract.

As grid coach, England takes a job that has been turned over five times since 1946. He succeeds Claire Dunn, head coach for the past two years, who finished last season with a 3-6 record.

England also replaces Athletic Director Barney Francis, who quit shortly after Dunn did five weeks ago.

Drury Tips Westminster For Third MCAU Win

SPRINGFIELD — Drury won its third MCAU basketball victory in four starts by thumping Westminster 65-56 last night.

Drury held an 11-point lead most of the game. Fred Wilkie of Drury took scoring honors with 20 points. Bill Cross got 16 for the losers. Westminster's league record is 0-3.

Sports Roundup— Henry Armstrong, Only 3-Title Holder, Now An Evangelist

By JACK HAND
(For Gayle Talbot)

NEW YORK (AP) — A visit with Henry Armstrong, the old triple champion, was like a pleasant trip down an old country lane. As he sat in robe and slippers in a mid-town hotel room, it was easy to imagine he was in town for a fight; and Eddie Mead, who used to manage him, was across town checking tickets with Uncle Mike.

Almost 16 years had slipped away since the night Henry stood proudly in the Garden ring, blood pumping from a deep cut inside his mouth, while Arthur Donovan raised his arm over Lou Ambers to give him a third world championship.

Nobody ever did it again and nobody ever will, for boxing commissions in this day make you give up one title if you win another. Only one other man, Bob Fitzsimmons, ever held three championships but his were scattered over 12 years.

They called him "Hammerin' Henry" or "Perpetual Motion" in the newspapers. His manager and his brother called him just plain "Hank." They probably called him other names too, in the Mexico City bull rings and the small clubs along the line where he stopped off to knock out a local hero before moving on to another town.

Now he is an evangelist — in town raising funds for a Henry Armstrong youth foundation, a dream home for boys to be built on the Soledad Canyon section, about 50 miles from Los Angeles.

Henry is 41 and a little plump at 165 pounds, about 30 pounds over his best fighting weight. He hasn't fought since 1945 just before he went to the China-Burma-India theater with a U. S. troupe.

For years he managed fighters like Cecil Hudson and Cleo Shane and trained others. But he has given it up, except for an occasional exhibition — "I go 60-second rounds" — for a worthy cause.

Phillies Gain Woes While Redlegs Add Contented Players

NEW YORK (AP) — While the Cincinnati Redlegs were adding to their list of contented players for 1954, the woes of the Philadelphia Phillies continued to pile up today. Outfielder Gus Bell, second baseman Rocky Bridges, pitcher Jackie Collum, utility infielder Connie Ryan and outfielder Lloyd Merriman returned their signed contracts to the Reds yesterday. Bell received a substantial increase in pay for his 1953 season, in which he batted .300, had 183 hits, scored 102 runs, 30 homers and batted in 105 runs.

But contractual pains still plagued owner Bob Carpenter of the Phils. Shortstop-second baseman Granny Hamner, pitcher Jim Konstanty and first baseman Earl Torgeson joined a group of unhappy Phils who have returned unsigned contracts.

Only eight of the 37 players on the Phils roster have signed their contracts. Those who have turned in unsigned pacts include pitchers Richie Ashburn and first baseman Eddie Waitkus. Outfielder Mel Clark was the latest to sign a contract.

Calves have 32 permanent teeth, the same number as humans.

There are about 800 varieties of earthworms.

New Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP*

The Greatest Gasoline Development in 31 Years

1. "After 4 years of pretty solid driving, I expected my Nash to run loud and I wasn't surprised at the loss of power. But since using Conoco Super with TCP, the difference has been astounding. It runs like new: No 'knocking' or 'pinging'! And now, you should see me take the hills!"

2. "When I switched to Conoco Super with TCP, my man asked me: 'What have you been doing to the car? It runs just like new!' We're getting 3 miles more to the gallon with our 1950 Packard. The car starts instantly and the acceleration on the road is just wonderful! Conoco Super is sure my gasoline!"

3. "Since I started using Conoco Super with TCP my Pontiac runs as though it had new spark plugs and points. When I'm on trips I carry an extra 15 gallons with me. I don't want to run out. I don't like to use any other. Conoco Super with TCP is tops as far as I'm concerned."

4. "As a salesman, I drive 30 to 35,000 miles a year in my '52 Packard. Ordinarily, I'd change spark plugs every 10,000 miles. But since using Conoco Super with TCP, I've driven 14,000 miles and the plugs are still in perfect condition. It's the best gasoline I've ever used!"

5. "I drive a 1952 Plymouth. Using Conoco Super with TCP, I'm getting at least two miles more to the gallon. And my experience with pickup and power is really astounding. I'm sure I'm getting 100% increase in all-around performance. You sure get the best out of your car using Conoco Super!"

Start your
"Two-Tank Test" today.

Motorists say they can feel the difference in car performance after the second tankful of Conoco Super Gasoline with TCP. No wonder it's hailed as the greatest gasoline advance since the introduction of tetraethyl lead in 1922. New Conoco Super with TCP actually neutralizes the harmful deposits on spark plugs and in combustion chambers that rob you of power. Thus it boosts power up to 15%—increases spark-plug life up to 150%—dramatically boosts gas mileage, too. With TCP, a new car keeps its built-in power; older cars can run like new again.

Your Guarantee

Only Shell Oil Company, and its authorized licensee, the Continental Oil Company, have the full knowledge on the proper use of TCP. It took Shell scientists more than 5 years to perfect the use of TCP in automotive gasoline. Only Conoco Super Gasoline and Shell Premium Gasoline have TCP. The trademark, TCP, is your guarantee that you are getting the full benefits of the greatest gasoline development in 31 years.

Rat Terrorizes Rat Terrier
POITSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Joseph Kopoko's pet dog has been embarrassed since his master made a discovery in his home here. Kopoko dismantled an old organ in his home and found several pounds of dog food stored there by what he feels sure was a rat. The food, Popoko figures, was taken from the dog's plate after it had been put there at dinner-time and represents about ten meals. The dog is a rat terrier.

Ex-Red PWs Return Free To UN Lines

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The mournful wail of a Chinese bugle cut jagged slashes in the icy air as it had so many times before.

The long, sad, chilling notes floated from hill to hill and lost themselves across the frozen paddies.

From the north came the throb of a big drum, the roar of frenzied cheering, and waves from the human sea rolled south for the last time.

Once, not so long ago, that eerie music would have chilled the hearts and pricked the skin of the waiting South Korean and American soldiers.

It would have set them crouching over rifles and machine guns, and loosening pins of grenades.

This morning, despite the tenseness, waiting men stomped chilled feet on the frozen ground, turned to each other, and smiled.

"They're coming!"

It was 8:52 a.m., and the first of the Chinese and North Korean prisoners of war marched peacefully out of compounds in Korea's neutral zone.

For the chanting, cheering marchers it must have been a strange and piquant experience.

For among them were thousands who had stormed down that very same road before, in 1950 and 1951.

Then they had swept across the Imjin River ice, over the barbed wire, through the minefields, and into the ROK and American trenches, killing and being killed.

This morning, laughing and smiling, they climbed into big American trucks—yelling and chattering like boys on the last day of school—while ROK army bands played them on.

At the Chinese check point, America's highest ranking officers in the Far East were there in person, waving and smiling at each truckload of departing Chinese.

They were Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens, here for a brief visit; Gen. John E. Hull, U.N. supreme commander; Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, commander of the 8th Army, and a score of lesser generals.

The Chinese and North Koreans themselves—all of them combat veterans—swung along in columns of six abreast singing and waving small South Korean or Nationalist China flags.

The Chinese climbed aboard their canvas-topped trucks for the chilly ride to Ascom City, the big Army camp four miles east of Incheon. Along the way they stopped for tea brewed by a special crew of Americans.

In Seoul, the rolling convoys of 16 trucks each got an ovation. Chinese clambered aboard the LSTs that will carry them to Formosa.

At the Korean exit point, just west of the place where the Chinese came out, long trains of steel boxcars stood waiting where the old Pusan-to-Mukden Railway cuts the demilitarized zone.

The North Koreans climbed aboard, 50 to a car, and trains steamed out as the prisoners shouted and cheered from the open doors.

Gov. Knight Urges Voluntary Private Health Insurance

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Goodwin J. Knight advocates voluntary private health insurance plans written like $50 or $100 deductible auto collision policies.

If private insurance companies can't handle the load alone, he told his news conference yesterday, he favors setting up a non-competing state medical insurance fund which would offer policies on a strictly voluntary basis.

He said his idea was a better solution than President Eisenhower's proposal for a system of government re-insurance of private medical plans.

First Presidential Year: Press Conference View

He Revolutionized the White House
Ordeal By Letting the Public In

IKE'S FIRST CONFERENCE: 300 reporters, and that was all.

IKE'S LATEST CONFERENCE: Newsreels, TV cameras, tape

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—For the first time in history, millions of American citizens now have a front-row seat while their Chief Executive suffers the unique democratic ordeal of being put on the griddle by newsmen.

That's the revolution President Eisenhower has brought about in the White House press conference in his first year in office.

He did it by breaking precedent and letting television and movie newsreel cameras in the door. He's letting the still newspaper photographers pop a lot more bulbs than ever before.

And he's permitting complete recordings of selected conferences to be aired on radio and printed in the press as direct quotes.

Nothing like this has ever happened since the presidential press conference had its meager beginnings back in Woodrow Wilson's day, and some of the Washington press corps is upset about it.

But that hasn't kept Ike's conferences from showing a better reportorial box office than any before. More than 300 correspondents attended the first session a year ago, and an average of 175 have been showing up regularly since then, which packs the conference room in the old State Department Building across the street from the White House.

In that year, the White House press corps agrees, President Eisenhower has consistently improved both the way he handles the sessions and the contents of his answers.

"He's more relaxed and friendly, and his answers are getting more precise," says one veteran reporter. "On top of that he's learning a lot more of the detail of government than he had when he started."

How does Ike feel about the sessions? Inside reports say they leave him stimulated and he enjoys them more and more each time. This is apparent in the increase of good-natured banter with the reporters, although he still doesn't call any of them by their first names as his predecessors did.

He hasn't tossed any barbs at the reporters, either.

"As yet, at least, he hasn't taken to coming to the conferences with a chip on his shoulder the way Harry Truman and FDR used to," one old-timer observes.

But the absence of the chip doesn't keep Ike from getting red in the face and turning stiffly formal in his replies when he's irked by a question. There's less of that these days, however. In the be-

Press Conference Box Score

In the 24 press conferences President Eisenhower held in his first year of office, here's the score on questions asked (Q) and statements made by the President (S) by topics:

	(Q)	(S)
Foreign Policy	187	15
Military	77	12
Politics	57	1
Interior Problems	48	1
Commies in Govt.	41	1
Farm	32	3
Administration	26	5
Budget	24	1
Taxes	23	1
Business	20	2
Job Appointments	18	1
Relations with Cong.	17	0
McCarthy	17	0
Labor	16	1
Personal	14	5
Press Relations	13	2
Federal-State Relations	7	3
Local	6	0

Their objection is wrapped up by Richard Strout of the Christian Science Monitor, who declares:

"Verbatim reporting, I think, turns what used to be a handy, carefully-evolved contrivance into a theatrical performance. It's changed into a self-conscious half-hour broadcast."

Similar objections killed ideas for a live telecast of the conferences. But the tape recordings will continue.

N. M. Candidate Urges Newsmen to Use Care In Highway Driving

HOBBES, N. M. (AP) — Candidate Leroy Wise today urged New Mexico newsmen to be careful while driving to their winter press convention in Carlsbad over the weekend.

"Our state's newspapermen have been so much help to me in my campaign," said the candidate for the Democratic nomination for governor, "that I don't want to take a chance of losing any of them through highway accidents."

Troops Are Called To Close Mexican Border to Farmers

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Troops in six northern Mexican states have been mobilized to prevent a general exodus of farm workers to the United States seeking employment the El Paso Times said yesterday.

Mexico closed its borders to farm workers Saturday night following the collapse of negotiations for renewal of the United States-Mexico migrant labor pact. Fear has been expressed that farm workers would stampede to the border.

Woman Will Marry Riveter Atop Building

DENVER (AP)—So the bride can "see what kind of work I do," Max A. (Pappy) Wilk and his lady fair will rivet bonds of matrimony Jan. 31 atop the 23rd floor of the Denver Club building, now under construction.

Pappy, 55, is a rivet heater on the project. The bride-to-be is Mrs. Mary Varnell, 52, an Alamosa, Colo., widow.

Their decision to get married atop the building came on the spur of the moment. "Some of the guys on the job dared me to do it," said Wilk. "I called her long distance and told her it was up to her. She said all right."

YOUR CHILD MAY HAVE PIN-WORMS

1 OUT OF 3 DOES!

Fidgeting, nose-picking and a tormenting rectal itch are often tell-tale signs of Pin-Worms... ugly parasites that medical experts say infect one out of every three persons examined. Entire families may be victims and not know it.

To get rid of Pin-Worms, these pests must not only be killed, but killed in the large intestine where they live and multiply. That's exactly what Jayne's P-W tablets do... and here's how they do it:

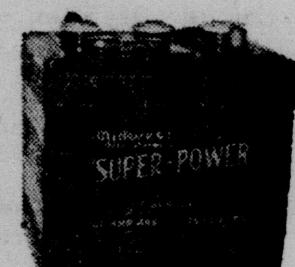

First—a scientific coating carries the tablets into the bowels before they dissolve. Then—Jayne's modern, medically-approved ingredient goes right to work—kills Pin-Worms quickly and easily.

Don't take chances with this dangerous, highly contagious condition. Get genuine Jayne's P-W Vermifuge... small, easy-to-take tablets... speed relief for children and adults. Perfected by Dr. D. Jayne & Son, specialists in worm remedies for 100 years.
